

“The logic of the Peace Corps is that someday we are going to bring it home to America.”

— President John F. Kennedy

Peace Corps Third Goal: Whom do I approach?

Consider the following suggestions for an audience you feel comfortable with and reach out to them directly. You may already know a contact or you could check the Internet for groups and organizations in your area. Alternatively, you can reach out to family, friends, and colleagues for an audience recommendation.

Students

- Elementary School
- Middle School
- High School

Youth Groups and Camps

- Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, 4-H Club, faith-based youth groups
- Summer camps, special theme camps

University and graduate students

Colleagues, friends, and neighbors

Local cultural fairs and story-telling festivals

Associations, organizations, and civic groups

General public through the media

Coverdell World Wise Schools Speakers Match Program

As an RPCV, you're a valuable resource to students, educators, youth groups, and community organizations that want to learn about other cultures. Sharing the lessons you learned as a volunteer is a wonderful way to serve your host country, benefit your local community in the United States, and continue your Peace Corps service.

When you enroll in the Speakers Match program, your contact information will be provided to educators in your area who request an RPCV speaker. Coverdell World Wise Schools proudly offers free print and online resources to help you make the most of your presentation. To enroll, simply mail your complete contact information, including best phone number and e-mail address, as well as your country, dates, and sector of service, to wwsinfo@peacecorps.gov.
